In-wall flames shut Bertucci's

By Andrea Gregory

The cause of a Monday night fire that has closed Bertucci's Pizzeria on Main Street was still under investigation at presstime, and people were working to repair the damage.

"They are cleaning up, trying to get it open as soon as possible," said Dep. Chief Lincoln Clark on Tuesday.

He did not know when the pizzeria would be able to reopen, but said town inspectors would need to check out the facility before it does reopen.

Thick, gray smoke poured out the front door of Bertucci's Pizzeria Monday night, fogging up the front patio and the sidewalk on Main Street as firefighters wrestled to extinguish the flames inside the wall and ceiling.

The manager of Bertucci's was treated for smoke inhalation by ambulance workers on the scene, and declined to be transported to a hospital, said Deputy Fire Chief Albert G. DelDotto. There were no other injuries. Management refused to comment.

DelDotto said the fire started in an office located at the back of the restaurant. The fire traveled through the walls and spread between the ceiling of the first floor, where Bertucci's is located, and the floor of the second floor, said DelDotto.

"It extended into the second floor significantly," said DelDotto. "There is significant damage to the second floor."

"The smoke started coming out of the vents. It had a very strange odor to it."

PAT MILLEY, BERTUCCI'S PATRON

The law office of Lorri S. Covitz is located above the restaurant and was empty at the time of the fire. It reopened Wednesday morning at 8:30 a.m. Covitz said repairs were still being made to her floor and walls.

But the dinner rush was reaching its peek on the first floor just before 7:30 p.m. Monday when the fire broke. Christa Milley, a hostess at Bertucci's, had just seated a

Running to religion

New congregations, updated facilities and programs fuel interest

By Andrea Gregory

Attend certain worship services, and at first glance things appear to be the way they have been for centuries. Children fidget in the pews, a baby cries, music and prayer reach the rafters.

But, thanks to hipper, edgier programs, expanded facilities and increased variety of congregations, in many cases, Andover's houses of worship are by no means your parents' houses of worship.

In addition, while there is a greater variety of ways to worship, the interest in religion in Andover appears to be growing. There are about two dozen houses of worship in Andover today, with more congregations talking about moving here next year. Over the past decade, 10 existing congregations have sought Planning Board approval to physically expand their religious facilities.

Planning Director Steve Colyer has witnessed the recent exterior changes to Andover religious buildings – and sees a change happening within the walls as well. "There is a trend. From a national standpoint, I think 9/11 connected a lot of people. You had more people talking about spirituality," said Colyer.

But even before Sept. 11, religious leaders were finding "new ways to reach their flocks," said Colyer. "There is a whole other side of spirituality. And that puts pressure on churches. If you are going to spiritually grow, you have to physically grow. It's almost like you can't do one without the other. That kind of growth is good. I think it's good in Andover. It's good in Massachusetts. It's good in the country."

Andover has a cross section of denominations, and now many of these congregations each offer a variety of programs to interest a cross section of the public.

Offering family friendly services and using popular music at certain services to make people feel more at home is a common approach at many Andover congregations, said Rabbi Robert Goldstein of Temple Emanuel, which moved to Andover in 1979 and expanded in 1998.

ABC host families see rewards

By Judy Wakefield

For the past four years, Mary Jo Gustus's routine has included an after-school stop at Andover High School every Wednesday afternoon.

Gustus's kids are only 9 and 11, leaving baffled friends to wonder where she is going.

"I'm getting my ABC daughter," she tells them, often bringing this question from those puzzled friends: "What's an ABC daughter?"

"I think it's a well kept secret in Andover," said the Fern Road mom who along with her husband, ex-School Committeeman Gerry Gustus, is a host parent for Andover's A Better Chance program, also known as the ABC program.

While those with ties to Andover High School are aware of the ABC program and the ABC house on Main Street, many people in town do not know that each student in the program also has a host family.

ABC offers girls from inner cities around the country the chance to live in the Main Street house and attend Andover High. The

Openness candidates: Four months in office

Silberstein wants fewer secret sessions

By Ben Hellman

After four months in office Alex Vispoli and Debbie Silberstein – the selectman and School Committee member, respectively, who campaigned on opening up town government – say their respective boards have been responsive to their ideas and their members care about openness. But the two new officials say they are pursuing plans to make Andover town government more accessible to residents.

Among the ideas are: limiting the number of secret sessions, offering School Committee office hours, having public reviews of town departments, publishing a School Committee newspaper and hosting forums to solicit support for the Vision 21 Committee report.

School Committee

Silberstein plans to propose cutting back on the number of executive sessions and replacing them with office hours for residents to meet with School Committee members to discuss issues. One or two members would be present before regular meetings to talk to residents. "I'd like to see us have one (executive session) a month," said Silberstein.

AND THE WALL COMES TUMBLING...

Vision 21 group finishes dream Andover

By Dorian Block

Imagine Andover in 20 years. The quaint, small-town character of its roots are frozen in time.

Historic buildings line the streets. The air is breathable, the water drinkable. Residents attend meetings, they volunteer, they vote. There are modern highways on the town's outskirts, but little traffic in residential neighborhoods. There are expanded pedestrian and bicycle paths, more parks and a vibrant downtown business district. No elder, veteran or child is left behind. Town leaders easily find the money to pay for social services and education. For those who can afford to live here (and it will be affordable), it is a kind of utopia.

This is the Vision 21 Committee's dream.

After 2½ years of preparation, committee members presented the final draft report on their hopes for the future of Andover at Monday night's Selectmen's meeting. The committee will review the document and consider whether to use it as a guide.

"We have a choice," the committee wrote in the introduction to the report. "We can simply accept how the town evolves or we can creatively manage change."

Since the committee's formation in December 2001, members appointed by the town manager have aimed to create a unified voice on Andover's community values to guide public officials through the next two decades.

Through public meetings and surveys and their own diverse membership, they determined what Andover leaders should know their constituents care about.

"We ask that our elected and

Host families help ease adjustment

■ HOST FAMILIES

program puts a heavy emphasis on academics and building self-discipline skills. Local families help with the adjustment by offering their homes for a taste of Andover living. The families provide a once-a-week dinner and a once-a-month weekend sleep over during the school year.

"They go from being in schools where everyone is like them to a place where you become the minority," Mary Jo Gustus said of the ABC girls. "It's an adjustment."

Her ABC daughter is Ivelisse "Evie" Ramos, who is Puerto Rican and lives in Brooklyn, N.Y., where the high school has no sports, no after-school clubs and a curriculum far below Andover standards. In September, Ramos is heading to Fordham University after being accepted to seven colleges. She graduated from Andover High last June.

The Gustus family keeps in touch with Evie and even plans to visit her family this summer because they miss her. Her once-a-month sleepovers had the Gustus kids playfully arguing about whose turn it was to sleep on the air mattress in the living room as Evie slept in one of their beds.

"I think there was some fear of the unknown in the beginning," said Gustus. "My husband was more excited about this program than me ... I was up on the elementary school lingo, not the high school lingo. We didn't have a high-schooler.

"But the kids really clicked with her and it's been a good experience for our children to see a different culture," Gustus said about her hosting experience.

That diversity is also welcome in the Bryan household on Hidden Road where Brenda, David and their two young daughters were happy to host ABC parties.

"When Zoila had friends over, we were the minorities at her parties," Brenda Bryan said. "Our house is diverse and it's a good perspective."

Their ABC daughter is Zoila Primo of New York City whom they hosted for the past four years. She will be attending George Washington University this fall to major in pre-law. The family will welcome a new ABC daughter this fall.

"The girls are great. They're bright, talented and hard working inner-city minority kids," said Bryan, reflecting on the ABC program. "They come from stable families where parents support them ... Some people think it's a troubled youth program and it's not."

Plus, it's a godsend when it comes to babysitting, she chuckled, as the girls and their friends are happy to help out.

Over on Fulton Road, the Shields family has just finished its first year of hosting Nacasi Green of Trenton, N.J., who will be a sophomore at AHS this fall.

Deb Shields, who hosts with her husband, Wally, and their three daughters, agreed the program is a well-kept secret in town and she's thrilled to be spreading the word.

"It makes our kids see how good the schools are here," she said. "Everyone gets busy with their lives and forgets that. I think we take the school system for granted (and ABC reminds us) that you get a great education here."

Each host mother applauded Andover High counselors and teachers for their involvement with the program, agreeing that counselors frequently meet with the girls to ensure things are going well.

Andover first joined ABC in 1969. Erlinda Parks of Andover currently coordinates the host-family program while her husband, Joel Parks, is the current president of the ABC Board of Directors. They have hosted two girls who went on to attend Smith and Barnard colleges.

Erlinda Parks said the ABC appeal is that it offers local families a chance to experience a new culture. Plus, it's just plain fun.

"Just to watch these girls grow and do so well is an excellent experience. Just seeing how they can get up to their potential is great (for families)," she said.

THE ABCs OF BECOMING A HOST

Host families are always needed for Andover's ABC program. Interested? Here's what you need to know:

- Eight minority girls from inner cities will be connected with Andover families.
- It's typically a four-year commitment for families while the girls attend Andover High during the school years.
- Families need to pick up the girls every Wednesday after school and bring them to their homes. Then, the girls are returned to the ABC house on Main Street by 8 p.m. so they can take part in study time.
- Local families also commit to a once-a-month weekend where the girls stay at their home. Families meet them after school on Friday and the girls stay until Sunday night, returning to the ABC house at 8 p.m.
- Family make-up varies. Parents with young children and families with high-schoolers have taken part in the program and reported enjoyable experiences.
- For more information call Erlinda Parks at 978-475-9427.

Both photos show the Priscilla Abbot House at 70 Elm St. According to the Andover Historical Society, George Washington ate breakfast there on his way to Phillips Academy in 1789. The bottom photo, showing the house this month, shows the house is now painted a different color, but otherwise looks quite similar.

Andover police on DNC case

The streets around the FleetCenter and the Democratic National Convention in Boston are fully staffed with police officers. Cruisers are stationed on Interstate 93 and many other main roads. More officers wait in staging areas ready to handle anything that could call for police action.

Among them are four Andover policemen.

"They are ready to go at a moment's notice," said Police Chief Brian Pattullo.

Andover Lt. William Mackenzie, a 27-year police officer, is heading up a unit at the convention this week, Pattullo said. He said Mackenzie and three other Andover policemen are at an undisclosed location and he withheld the names of the other officers for safety reasons.

Pattullo said the four officers are members of the SWAT and regional response team.

Andover is a member of Northeast Massachusetts Law Enforcement Council made up of 42 communities that share resources. Pattullo said the Boston Police requested the service of about 145 NEMLEC officers for the convention. He said Boston is picking up the tab for the additional manpower with money that was set aside to pay for the convention.

Blood drive Aug. 3

Andover has a reputation for giving when it comes to blood drives. Even the dog days of summer don't keep some donors away.

Andover residents will have a chance to add to their reputation at the town's annual Super Summer Blood Drive, Tuesday, Aug. 3 from 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. at the Town House, also known as Old Town Hall, 20 Main St. Food and T-shirts will be complimentary, according to Julie Quinn, recruitment representative for the Red Cross Blood Services in Dedham. She said the New England region currently has less than a one-day supply of most blood types. That's extremely low, as many givers take vacations and college students, known for giving blood often, enjoy summer break. For an appointment for Tuesday's blood drive, call 1-800-GIVE LIFE. For information, check out www.newenglandblood.org.

Pattullo called such charts, comparing Andover to other towns, a bunch of hooey, and outlined the needs of his department. (Story, page 6)

Corrections

Last week's article on the Abbot House on Andover Street, which is for sale ("Who will buy historic Abbot home?", June 22), erroneously said the house is vacant. It is not.

In the list of the town's 14th Annual Preservation Awards published in the Townsman's June 10 edition, an architect's name was wrong in the information supplied by the Andover Preservation Commission.

The architectural firm associated with the addition to the home located at 12 Gray Road was architect Craig Gibson (not Gilbert as printed) of Albert, Richter and Tittmann, Architects Inc., Boston.

"We want to make sure that those associated with these outstanding projects receive the proper credit for their work," said Karen M. Herman, chairwoman, Andover Preservation Commission.

Officials: What is real, what is 'wish list' appointed leaders use the report as a context for all decisions they make," committee Vice Chairman John Roberts said.

Roberts said the committee's mission is a balancing act. They know public officials must weigh the town's desire for a stable tax base against its love of "small-town character" and open space when a new high-rise or other revenue-generating development is proposed.

There is the issue of "closing the door after you got in," Roberts said.

"While we want to maintain the complexion of the community, that is not our decision to make," he said. "We'll leave it up to the decision-makers to decide what of this can truly be managed and what of this is truly a wish list."

At the end of the day on Tuesday at the Vacation Bible School attended by children of many churches in town, the children sang about teamwork. The school is so popular it added a night session this year.

Religious renaissance with community-focused events

sion was built in 2003, members said it was essential that its facility include classrooms for religious education – and it offers classes to the public on subjects such as yoga. Free Christian, South, West Parish, Christ and Andover Baptist churches pull together each year to offer a week long vacation bible school program to the community. This year, they offered it at night, too, to meet growing demand.

Catholic churches such as St. Augustine offer a variety of newer programs, such as divorce counseling, and advertise them in church bulletins.

Because congregations are offering much more than Sunday services today, and attracting more people, larger facilities are being built.

South Church on Central Street – the latest Andover congregation to break ground on an expansion project – offers its space to support groups such as Alcoholics Anonymous, to the Boy Scouts and for religious education and choir practices. That is not uncommon. Terry Ebner, director of Christian education at South Church, said many programs practically run on top of each other. It's a tight squeeze sometimes, but knowing an 8,000 square foot, three-story addition is on the way is something to be thankful for, say members.

"It's kind of a remarkable story, in some ways," said Jonathan Drury, director of youth ministry at South Church. "We make sure we work hard to welcome."

Free Christian Church on Elm Street expanded about four years ago, and it might need to do so again, as church staff said community outreach, and the number of programs and services continue to grow.

"We felt like we were maxed out. We had to expand or say we don't have any room for you. It was crowded, and it's currently crowded again. We just weren't willing to say we are full," said Kim McElfresh, executive minister at Free Christian Church.

The church offers a 34-page blue booklet entitled Connections listing its offerings, from basketball games to couples' nights out. Such outreach measures – and there are similar ones at many congregations – can bring new members on board.

Wendy Nevin, director of senior adult ministry, said a lot of people join a church for their kids, but adults are finding there are programs for them as well.

She said in the past five years she has noticed a "big boom" of programs meant to support the needs of the community.

McElfresh said her church will be offering a Christian service geared toward the 20-somethings in town. She said there is not one like it in the Merrimack Valley, but Free Christian plans to start one this fall.

The services will be called Common Ground and are expected to be a little different. Unplugged folk music, poetry and videos will be incorporated into these evening services, making church hipper for those interested, said McElfresh.

That follows in the footsteps of other services, such as South Winds at South Church, which has incorporated a variety of different music and themes for more than five years.

Friday Night Live – a traditional service set to rock and pop music – is another example, offered by Temple Emanuel, the largest of three Jewish congregations in town.

"The kids like it. The adults just love it," said Carrie Lavoie, executive director. "I think music tends to keep people interested. It's a growing thing here."

One thing that helps keep Temple Emanuel active is offering unique approaches to traditional teachings, she said. "It's an extremely active congregation and community," she said.

Even new pastors immediately look for new opportunities. Father Bill Cleary, who came to St. Augustine Church about a month ago, is already thinking of ways to expand what the church offers. He said a young woman approached him about launching something for young and single adults - something that would combine religion and social activities.

"We have shortcomings and we know where they are," said Cleary.

Cleary said he grew up in a time when the church was central to community life and included social activities such as evening dances in addition to Sunday Masses. Gradually, the church became less of center to community life, but Cleary said he believes there is a push to merge the two again.

"Catholics are realizing more and more we are part of a whole community and not an island," he said.

But while the church may intend to open its doors as wide as it can in hopes that the outside community feels more welcome, space is an issue St. Augustine Church leaders are simultaneously trying to address. Large cardboard posters in Cleary's office show plans for three additions to St. Augustine Church, although initial bids returned much higher than expected.

"We need a parish center. We need it so bad," said Cleary.

The parish is made up of more than 3,000 families, a number that has steadily grown. The number of children in religious education classes could reach 1,400 this fall, predicted Cleary. For now, groups meet in a building with small rooms that was once the convent for the church, said Cleary.

The church wants to build a parish center, cultural and sports building and put an addition onto the St. Augustine School.

The most recent congregation to pour a new foundation into Andover soil is the Chinmaya Mission. According to Dilip Mathur, board member and adult education teacher at the mission, the Andover site was discovered by Gopala Dwarakanath, a founder and Andover resident.

"It's perfect for us because it can serve the whole northern area," said Mathur.

He said many of the people that make up the 250-member congregation are within a 40 minute car ride of the facility.

Before the mission was built, the congregation, then of about 100 members, rented town facilities in Bedford. "Not having your own space makes a difference," said Mathur. Not only has the mission seen membership rise, but it has hosted classes and events the public could take part in. "We really do want to include the larger community," he said. "We find that it is of benefit to everybody. We feel the knowledge that we teach can bring out the best in everybody in society."

A few aspects of Indian culture have become mainstream if not trendy in recent years, such as yoga and meditation. Yoga and meditation classes are offered at the Chinmaya Mission at no charge currently, said Mathur, suggesting that they could be a way for people to learn more about the congregation and what it has to offer the community.

Good Neighbor Award winner gets help of his own

By Ben Hellman

Days after being awarded for helping his neighbors, Andover senior Joe Daley needed their help.

Daley suffered a stroke last week and had to be hospitalized. He is now back on his feet and home at his Grandview Terrace apartment.

Daley, 72, received a Good Neighbor Award from the Andover Housing Authority two weeks ago for helping a friend who he was having trouble breathing and for looking after his neighbors in general.

Last week Daley did not pick up the phone when his friend Bob Ruel, of Chestnut Court, gave him a call. "It's a good thing I did," said Ruel.

Because Daley did not answer the phone, Ruel went to his apartment and found Daley incapacitated, suffering from a stroke, said Daley. Joyce White, also of Grandview Terrace, called for an ambulance.

Daley said he would be giving up driving, but he was feeling well. "(My doctor) said I should be all right. I'm home, that's the main thing," said Daley.

Addison arts program for kids benefits

Feds support Essex National Heritage Area

By Andrea Gregory

The federal government has approved continued grant money for projects that benefit national heritage areas, including the Essex National Heritage Area.

Some of this money will help the Addison Gallery of American Art at Phillips Academy, which uses the money to create collections of young Lawrence students art work.

BJ Larson, director of museum resources, pulls out a spiral-bound, paper book, a collection of photographs and poetry created by Lawrence middle-school kids last school year. It is called My World, My World. Inside, each page offers a black-and-white photograph and a work of poetry produced by a certain child. Larson said similar books will be put together with students work this year, but an essay will accompany each photo instead of a poem.

Julie Bernson, director of education, said she knows with hard financial times, many school systems are struggling to keep art classes. But Addison is helping to make sure creative ventures of self discovery stay in the classroom. They help teachers incorporate art into the curriculum for subjects such as history and English.

"It's providing visual literacy. It works on so many levels," she said.

The Addison recently received a $4,000 grant to provide art education programs in Merrimack Valley schools free of charge. It will use to money to continue building art curriculums and offering lesson plans for teachers in the Merrimack Valley.

The Addison program has been around for about 10 years. This is the first year the Essex National Heritage Commission has contributed to funding the $80,000 per year program.

Annie Harris, executive director for the Essex National Heritage Commissioners, said there are several grants given out each year to support many different groups and projects. The idea is to promote historic, cultural, and natural resources in the Essex National Heritage Area, she said. This year, the Addison Gallery is the only Andover grant recipient.

On June 19, the US House of Representatives passed a bill for $10 million in federal funding to extend the Essex National Heritage Area 15 years longer than what was established in the original bill.

Congressman Marty Meehan has helped to introduce the bill for the additional funding and extension.

In 1996, the Omnibus Parks bill founded nine National Heritage Areas around the country including one in Essex County, said Matt Vogel, spokesman for Meehan. The original bill provided funding for the initial creation of the areas through 2012. Vogel said congressmen such as Meehan decided now was the time to start thinking ahead. The current bill was established to take a proactive role and to avoid a "last minute scramble" to preserve these areas, said Vogel.

Selectman Vispoli wants mid-year reviews

■ NEW OFFICIALS

She has also volunteered to update the committee's policy manual, a job member Christopher Smith has agreed to help with, said Silberstein. Members have supported producing a regular committee newspaper. Member Art Barber is researching the kinds of newsletters and periodicals other town's School Committees put out.

Debbie Silberstein

But Silberstein's proposals have not met with complete agreement. Her first policy amendment to make the notes from the School Committee's closed-door executive sessions reflect the nature of discussions was not supported by fellow members. However, Silberstein said all four members are actively following Massachusetts Open Meeting Law and do respect the spirit of the law, even if it does not mirror her own take on it. "Every (member) has gone out of their way to familiarize themselves with the law and be very proactive about it. They're being responsible to the spirit of the law," said Silberstein.

Silberstein said despite members resistance to her "nature of discussions" proposal, they have welcomed her views. "All four members have been respectful and open-minded," she said.

She said members have demonstrated the ability to work well together in recent summer work sessions even though members bring different views to the table. "It's a diverse group with different life experiences, different educational backgrounds and different values. My guess is that it will be more of a 3-2 or 4-1 committee instead of a 5-0 (committee). I'm not saying it will always be the same (members voting together)," said Silberstein.

Selectmen

Vispoli said he is gaining support for a mid-year review of town departments, a review he described to voters when he campaigned. Vispoli wants to provide residents who do not normally follow town government with 15-minute presentations from department heads about their departments' goals and objectives for the year.

Vispoli said he's received positive feedback from Town Manager Buzz Stapczynski on the reviews and plans to propose them to selectmen.

Vispoli would also like to see selectmen hold a public forum to discuss and solicit public comment on the Vision 21 Committee's report. "The Board of Selectmen needs to share the vision with as many people as possible," he said.

Alex Vispoli

Vispoli said he believes members support public communication and openness, but can improve. "I think there is always room for improvement in how we present and provide information to the town," he said.

Vispoli said members have supported him as a new member. "The other four members have been willing to listen and work with me. You've got a board of very committed people who have Andover's best interest in heart," said Vispoli.

'All we saw was the smoke getting thicker' party on the patio. She was walking inside for menus when she saw a rush of people evacuating.

Her mother, Pat Milley, and younger brother, Nick, 15, of Andover had popped in to see her at work and grab a bite to eat. Their order was in, but the pizza had not arrived when they were asked to leave.

"It was a very strange thing. The smoke started coming out of the vents. It had a very strange odor to it," said Pat Milley. "The next thing you know the manager was telling everyone to get out. I really don't think anyone is going back in there."

Pat Milley sat with her children on a bench across the street, watching the smoke continue to billow from the building.

Michael Hirsch and Richard Neese, both of St. Petersburg, Fla., were in the area on business and trying to relax over dinner when the fire occurred. They were finishing a meatball appetizer when they were told to leave.

"All we saw was the smoke getting thicker and thicker. The smoke coming out of the ceiling vents was starting to get a little smellier, like wood burning – kind of like a house burning," said Neese.

Both travelers said they were still hungry. After watching the smoke and the commotion of firefighter scrambling on the scene for a while, they decided to try their luck at another restaurant. But they couldn't go far, since their rental car, a silver Pontiac Grand Am, was lodged between one of the fire trucks and the curb in front of Bertucci's.

This was the first time firefighters responded to a fire from the new Andover Public Safety Center on Main Street. They moved in to the new facility last Tuesday.

"Had the manpower and equipment on Ladder 1 had to come from West Station, the damage would have been much worse," said DelDotto. "The fire would have got more hold on the building. I can say that with certainty."

Bertucci's restaurant manager, who declined to give his name, received oxygen from Andover EMTs after ensuring everyone had left building following a fire Monday night.

BRAINSTORMING SESSION

Officials criticize schools budget approach

By Andrea Gregory

Andover town officials expressed frustration with the budget process at a brainstorming session last Thursday at the Robert McQuade Water Treatment Plant.

Selectman Alex Vispoli also seemed a bit frustrated when officials began listing goals to set for the town.

Selectmen Chairman Brian Major began the list by suggesting "labor contracts" – a process already behind schedule as contracts expired July 1.

Vispoli wanted to attach a time limit to the idea. He asked Major what kind of deadline he saw for the goal of finishing labor negotiations. But Major insisted dates and timeframes were not part of the brainstorming process, at least not at that stage. "The idea with brainstorming is you don't discuss. You put the ideas up on the board," said Major.

Selectman Mary Lyman said one of the things she desperately wants is a smoother budget process than last year. She specifically mentioned that the school department claimed it needed money to hire additional teachers and later conducted a tri-board meeting packed with residents before finally announcing at the meeting it had the money to cover the request itself.

"If I have to sit through another school budget meeting, I'll slit my wrist," joked Lyman.

Lyman was not the only official to voice problems with school officials during the budget process. Police Chief Brian Pattullo told officials he was nine officers short due to injuries, military deployment and two unfilled vacanies. If he had the nine positions filled he would have a total of 54 officers. But according to law enforcement statistics and guidelines, Andover should have 62 to 64 officers based on its demographics, he said.

If other officials wanted it, he could create the same types of charts and graphs that the school department has used to build a case for needing more money, he said. The School Department compared itself and its funding to that of other towns.

"If you want us to do that and make it look like we're underfunded, we can do that," said Pattullo.

For homework, the selectmen and town manager will prioritize a list of 22 goals, starting with the problems they believe must be tackled immediately, and working their way down to issues that can be put off. The next brainstorming session will be on Aug. 22 at the new safety center.

Opinion

Secret sessions: Less is more

WHEN IT COMES TO SECRECY by town government, less is better. School Committee member Debbie Silberstein's suggestion to have fewer closed-door or "secret" sessions should be adopted by her committee.

Currently, the School Committee schedules a closed-door meeting before virtually every one of its school-year meetings. This seems to make it more likely that members' conversations might sway toward subjects the public would benefit from hearing. Also, because secret-session notes give few details about what was discussed, the public never gets a chance to learn what transpired.

Calling closed-door meetings only when they are needed, rather than scheduling them every week, will help ensure that the public receives the information it deserves.

The School Committee received significant criticism and damaged its reputation because it agreed to extend the superintendent's contract in a secret session last summer and did not tell anyone about it – even when people asked. Now that people are asking for fewer of these closed-door sessions, the committee ought to respond.

Web question

Should town lean on cane again?

Last week's Townsman Web-site question was: Funding for the sewer expansion project appears to be running out from the cost of blasting, police detail overtime and repaving, and a final phase of the project still to come. What is the best way to handle this?

20 people voted.

5, or 25 percent, said, "Hold a Special Town Meeting to allocate more money immediately."

3, or 15 percent, said "Hold a Special Town Meeting to allocate more money immediately, but delay another approved project."

4, or 20 percent, said, "Reduce the number of houses to be tied into the sewer connection."

1, or 5 percent, said, "Hope bids come in low and keep trying until the town gets a deal it can afford."

5, or 25 percent, said, "Put project on hold until next year's Town Meeting."

2, or 10 percent, voted, "Other."

This week's Andover Townsman Web-site question is: Andover's Boston Post cane is hidden away in Town Offices. The canes were given to Massachusetts towns to remain perpetually in the hands of the town's oldest resident. What should be done with the cane?

• It should be given to Andover's oldest resident and passed on, as it was intended.

• It should be put on display at Memorial Hall Library or some other public location for all to appreciate.

• Not interested. Nothing's been done with it for years and no one seemed to mind.

• The idea of passing the cane is a bit morbid.

• Other.

Getting cheers off the field

Editor, Townsman:

A word of recognition for the members of the Andover High School football team participating in the "12th Player" community service project raising funds for the improvements planned for Lovely Field. These young men are fastidiously incorporating requests from residents to perform tutoring, landscaping and odd jobs around households in Andover, into their personal and hectic schedules, juggling training, camps, jobs and summer course work. Then, they donate the money earned to help improve the field.

Our family recently participated in enlisting the landscaping services of three young men in the 12th Player Program. They were diligent in their efforts, extremely courteous and completed their job with great customer satisfaction. Matt Hennessy, Pardeep Thandi and Mike Brucato set a fine example for other students in the community to donate their time and talents to benefit their high school in many different ways both in the summer and during the academic year.

The new religion

Neil Fater

You don't need organized religion to be a good person. But, for those with faith in a higher power, having a place to go where you can concentrate for an hour or so on what's important can be, well, a godsend.

Particularly in a world of beeping, glowing, handheld gadgets, the pew might be the only place left where one can unplug and concentrate on higher ideas without being interrupted. At least until houses of worship start turning their pews into Internet cafés. No congregation in Andover has done that yet – to my knowledge anyway – but many congregations are trying new programs that interest different segments of the population.

The powder that is helping to fuel Andover's spiritual boom is diversity.

Not just diversity in the variety of congregations, although there is that. Andover has about two dozen congregations, from Hindu to Baptist, and most are growing. Another new congregation, Bethel Community Church, will come to Andover next spring.

But the diversity I'm talking about is in the different programs offered by single congregations. Often these programs, such as day care programs or support groups, have little ties to specific beliefs, and are open to everyone.

A generation ago, more religious leaders seemed to have the attitude, "Here's where I stand. If you don't agree with me, you can go somewhere else." Houses of worship now try hard to attract and appeal to current and potential congregants.

They don't just offer bingo for seniors, they offer specific trips, groups, programs – even photo ops on Harleys, as we can see from the photo on page 4. Houses of worship are places that feel like homes away from home again.

"People don't just want to come on Sunday and leave. They want to be connected," said Wendy Nevin, director of senior adult ministry at Free Christian Church. But she added, "You've got to make it fun."

Many congregations offer small group programs. They offer services geared to specific groups: families, teens, young singles.

The music doesn't put people to sleep; it puts people in the seats. Special services such as SouthWinds at South Church use not only funk, jazz and traditional tunes but also movie clips and Groucho Marx glasses. A recent service had people walk a labyrinth, or maze, to experience an ancient Christian meditation.

It's been healthy for the houses of worship, and for the people taking part in the services. The changes have not just lead to soul building but to community building.

"Religion is much less about theology and much more about community," says Rabbi Robert Goldstein of Temple Emanuel. "We live in a more confusing world now and people move around more. As people move away from their family, they are looking for community. The church and the synagogue have helped to make up for that deficit."

God bless them for it.

For earth's sake, we must demand wind and water-powered electricity

Editor, Townsman:

The frantic pace of life forces us to get plugged in to many aspects of our lives with cell phones, pagers, e-mail, instant messaging, and voice mail. Otherwise just how could we keep track of our families, kids' activities, work, leisure and social activities? And what about the rest of the equipment, gadgets, machines, and devices that we need to survive?

We are consuming ever-increasing amounts of electrical energy just to keep up with all the technology. Where will it all end? Are we doomed due to global warming? As with all open-ended questions, there are at least two answers to the questions posed here: do nothing and despair, or take control of the situation and aspire to greatness.

I tend to go with optimism: take personal responsibility and exert control. Here's how people can do it: plug in to the earth. People can "plug in" by requesting that their electricity provider deliver power to their home that is generated from totally pollution-free sources – no coal, no oil, no nuclear, and no natural gas, just wind and hydroelectric. This is not pie-in-the-sky wishful thinking.

People should not wait for the government to encourage them. They must take the initiative. They must be willing to pay a premium to plug-in to the earth of about 2 cents per kilowatt-hour, enough to compensate for the taxpayer subsidies they already pay to support the fossil fuel and electric power industries.

Just imagine 1 million ratepayers in Massachusetts saying, wind and hydro-generated power only. The resulting increase in the supply of wind and hydro power will help drive costs down and expand new, pollution-free energy sources. Coupling such demand for pollution-free power with the phasing out of old, outdated coal-fired power plants will also improve our air quality.

So, let's make phone calls to electricity providers, request 100 percent wind and hydro power, and then get plugged in to the earth. People who do will be helping to protect their children and future generations from the real threats posed by global warming and they will help demonstrate America's commitment to sustainable development in the United States and beyond.

ALL THOSE YEARS AGO

100 Years Ago – 1904

President Theodore Roosevelt was notified formally of his nomination for the presidency at the national Republican convention. The ceremony took place at his country home at Sagamore Hill, three miles from the village of Oyster Bay, Long Island, N.Y.

The house and barn of the Edwin Fairburn estate in West Parish was destroyed in a fire this morning. The origin of the fire is unknown and the damage is estimated at roughly $1,200. No persons were injured.

The hook and ladder truck of the Andover Steam Fire Engine company has just been given a new coat of paint and is now a beautiful specimen of the artist's skill. The background is painted a beautiful deep red and the ladders are painted in the same color. Artistic ornaments of black, gold, and white add to the beauty of the machine. The work was done by A.M Colby.

The lightning of last night struck the house of William B. Cheever on Chestnut Street, but fortunately the damage was not serious. The bolt ripped several bricks from the chimney and entered the cellar, disturbing things somewhat. The occupants, besides getting a severe fright, were not injured. The lightning also caused havoc with the electric lights throughout the town, a fuse being burned out, extinguishing all the lights.

A party of Andover young people enjoyed a tally-ho ride to the Bald Pate on Wednesday evening, which was ideal for such a ride, with the moon full and the sky cloudless. On arriving at Bald Pate, a supper was served and dancing enjoyed.

The rate of taxation was fixed by the board of selectmen on Monday at their regular meeting. The rate will be the same as last year, $16 per $1,000.

All owners of canines should see that the taxes are paid as they are now overdue and the owners are liable for fines.

At a session of probate court before Judge Harmon, Monday, inventories were filed of the estates of Hattie L. Bliss, $1,264.72, and Margaret Nicholson, $4,214.22.

Prof. E.Y Hincks, while fishing in a mountain brook, slipped and had a heavy fall, which made a very bad bruise and broke two ribs. He will prolong his stay at Randolph.

The Union baseball team will play the strong Bluestocking team tomorrow afternoon on the Phillips campus.

50 Years Ago – 1954

Friday and Saturday, July 30 and 31, are Andover's Mid-Summer Value Days. These semi-annual bargain events are staged through the co-operation of Andover's merchants and present a genuine opportunity to make outstanding savings.

The annual mid-summer outing for the youngsters who are registered on the local playgrounds will be held next Tuesday at Canobie Lake Park.

Letters of resignation from two teachers were read at a special meeting of the School Committee last Friday night, leaving four vacancies to be filled at a meeting to be held Aug. 17.

The Red Cross is grateful to Andover for its generous reponse to the call for blood. About 71 pints were collected during last week's bloodmobile visit, an excellent record for a summer day.

The town has a growing number of residents who pay a substantial amount of taxes each year, which number – with the $3 increase in the tax rate over 1953 – more now than ever before.

After a public hearing Monday night the selectmen denied the petition of the Lawrence Electric Co. for two poles on the west side of Stirling Street because of the objections of several residents of the street.

Around the World on $80: Robert Christopher did it, but it is not recommended procedure for anyone. He made friends everywhere, thumbed rides on jeeps, trucks, planes, and boats, went in any possible conveyance, and had 15 cents left over.

Chairman J. Everett Collins of the board of selectmen has received notice from Richard Preston, commissioner of the State Department of Commerce, that the latter favors the westerly side of Andover and the Greater Lawrence area for the relocation of Route 28.

Retail prices of consumer goods and services in Massachusetts in June averaged 1.3 percent more than a year ago, as reported by the Division of Necessaries of Life. Food was up 1.1 percent, apparel 1.4 percent, housing 2.6 percent, and sundries 1.8 percent. Fuel and light showed no change.

A matched set

Andover resident and longtime Andover Country Club member Linda Donovan scored her first ever hole-in-one at the fifth hole at the Andover Country Club on July 9.

"I couldn't believe it happened. I saw it fly 140 yards and it just went it. I was so shocked," said Donovan. "Also, it was weird because my husband scored a hole-in-one 10 days earlier, at the same hole."

When she sunk her hole-in-one, Donovan was competing with others from all over New England at a mother-and-son golf tournament as part of the Women's Golf Association of Massachusetts. "There were over 200 mothers and sons there and I was the only one that day who hit a hole-in-one. It was pretty special for me and I'm so glad I was able to share that moment with my son," said Donovan.

Donovan has been playing golf for 20 years, but she said she still has some catching up to do with her husband, Bill. He's hit a total of three holes-in-one.

"It's not everyday you get a hole-in-one. There are some golfers who have played for a very long time and have never scored a hole-in-one," explained Linda Donovan.

Golfers Bill and Linda Donovan each got holes-in-one only 10 days apart on the 5th hole at Andover Country Club. It was his third hole-in-one, and her first.

Donovan has qualified and will compete at the Rogers Tournament on Aug. 4. The tournament will help raise money for the Santa Fund.

We all need something we can lean on...

A piece of Andover history that has sat unceremoniously in Town Offices for years might receive some attention again.

It's Andover's Boston Post cane – a cane meant to support the town's oldest resident.

In 1909, the now-defunct Boston Post newspaper presented gold-handled, mahogany canes to an unknown number of towns in New England as a publicity stunt. The cane was to be presented to the oldest resident of each town and be passed to the new oldest resident whenever a holder passed away.

At some point, the tradition of passing the cane was stopped. Andover's cane has sat in the corner of Town Clerk Randy Hanson's office for at least 15 years – not that everyone knew about this.

The Andover Historical Society did not know what had happened to the cane, said historian Jim Batchelder. The last information he could find on the cane was found in a Townsman article from the 1930s, he said.

"I had it all along. It's not a secret," said Hanson.

Hanson found the cane in her office when she took the job about 15 years ago and bought Barbara Staples' The Bay State's Boston Post Canes to learn more about the object. Hanson said she's considered suggesting to selectmen that the town display the cane publicly, such as in a case at the library.

Hanson said many other towns have lost their canes over the years. According to Staples' book, published in 1997, 26 towns in Essex County were given canes. Of those, eight had lost the original cane by 1997.

The Andover cane was first given to Benjamin Franklin Wardwell, who was 93 when he received it. Wardwell attended Andover Public Schools and later Phillips Academy. He was a carpenter and held several minor town offices, according to Staples.

Batchelder does not know when the Andover cane was removed from public circulation.

Andover's Boston Post cane apparently found a rest home — in Town Clerk Randy Hanson's office — for the last 15 years.

Priming the pump

Among the estimated 6,000 walkers from local companies participating in the 2004 Boston Heart Walk on Saturday, Sept. 18 will be Deborah DiSanzo of Andover, vice president of cardiac resuscitation at Philips Medical Systems.

Having had a history of heart disease in her family, DiSanzo is passionate about fighting it and has personally raised $4,000 for the upcoming Heart Walk for the American Heart Association. Similarly, Philips Medical Systems hopes to raise $145,000 for the AHA.

Deborah DiSanzo

Joining DiSanzo for the walk will be her young daughter Emily. The pair has chosen to walk the three-mile route rather than the one-mile or six-mile options. Though Emily has participated in other walks, her mother is concerned that a six-mile walk may be slightly too grueling for her. Nevertheless, DiSanzo and her daughter are excited to be involved in such an important charitable event. "Heart disease is the No. 1 killer in the country," said DiSanzo.

The American Heart Association's goal this year is to raise $1.15 million to help fund life-saving research, public and professional education, and community service programs to fight heart disease and stroke. Last year alone, the AHA donated $20 million to fund heart-disease research.

Those interested in supporting the Boston Heart Walk can log onto www.heartwalk.kintera.org/bostonma, or call 508-620-1700.

Glorious weather we're having

The weather was just right for dinner on the patio Monday night, said Adrienne Sarkisian, owner of Glory restaurant on Essex Street. Monday was the first night the outside dining option was offered to Glory patrons.

The dining area is on the side of the building that faces the back steps of the library. The tables were covered with linens and topped with umbrellas and Sarkisian said she was pleased with the way the outside addition looked.

The Zoning Board of Appeals approved outside seating for 30 people at the restaurant last summer.

Sarkisian said she had envisioned the project for years, and it finally came to be during the Glory's sixth year of business. The addition adds to the outdoor dinner options in downtown Andover, which already included places such as Palmer's on Elm Street and, before Monday's fire, Bertucci's on Main Street.

Designed for students entering grades 6 through 8, Ultimate Drop-In Playground members performed inline skating tricks last Thursday, July 22 for the Senior Connection outside the Andover Senior Center.

Performing for their elders

Student skaters show seniors some tricks

By Andrea Gregory

About a dozen senior citizens sat in the shade of the trees near the senior-center parking lot. The song She's a Maniac played in the background and soon helmet-wearing kids were jumping over backpacks, looping around in circles and skating backwards.

Inline-skating children from the Ultimate Playground, a Department of Community Services day camp for kids, were performing for the seniors. The children said it was a good time and they were more than happy to show off their talents and do a few tricks for an audience.

Shirley McDonald, a senior, said she was impressed with the kids. "They are very good," McDonald said. "They looked like they were having a good time." Laughing with her friends, she said she could never do the maneuvers the kids had.

Drew O'Brien, 13, offered an explanation of how he approaches his skating jumps.

"You just push off and hope you don't wipe out," he said.

The intent of the program is not to inspire Andover seniors to lace up a pair of inline skates. Every Thursday, the children from Ultimate Playground pop by the senior center to spend time with members of a senior citizen social group called Senior Connections. Together, the kids and seniors have played bingo, devoured watermelon slices and enjoyed each other's company.

"It's been a great thing," said Marion Aziz, Senior Connections coordinator. "I would love to have them every summer."

"You just push off and hope you don't wipe out."

HOW DREW O'BRIEN, 13, APPROACHES HIS SKATING JUMPS

Aaron Dynes, Ultimate Playground supervisor, said the community service part of the program was introduced last summer. While Ultimate Playground is sports oriented, spending time doing other activities helps to mix things up and teach the kids something about community. He said the kids and the seniors both seem to enjoy their time together.

That seemed to be the case last Thursday. While other kids skated, Jason Page, 11, showed off the moves he can make on his scooter. He said he knows how to use inline skates, but he outgrew his pair. So, wanting to participate in the demonstration, he grabbed his scooter's red handlebars, and performed for the senior-center audience. Jason said the seniors looked happy and everyone seemed to have a great time – even if the weather was a little hot.

RELIEF ON THE WAY

The Sisterhood of Temple Emanuel recently completed a month-long drive to gather clothing, toiletries, and food for donation to Haiti. With the help of Enterprise Bank in Andover, the Sisterhood collected more than 1,000 pounds of clothing and other items. With the assistance of the Karfunkel family, members of Temple Emanuel, these items were collected, stored at the Karfunkel residence, and then loaded onto a large van for delivery and shipment by boat from Boston to Haiti. When they arrive at Haiti, a Haitian-American acquaintance of the Karfunkels will personally deliver the collected items to the countryside where the need for help is the greatest. In the photo, Perry Karfunkel (at right) helps load the van with 1,000 pounds of clothes donated for Haiti. At left is one of the workers for the transportation company bringing the items to Boston.

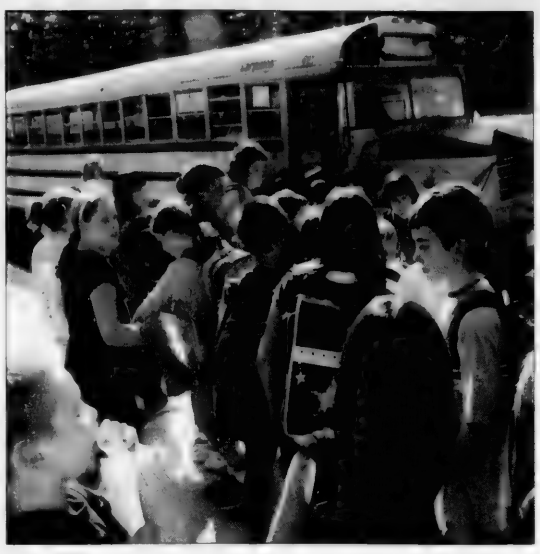
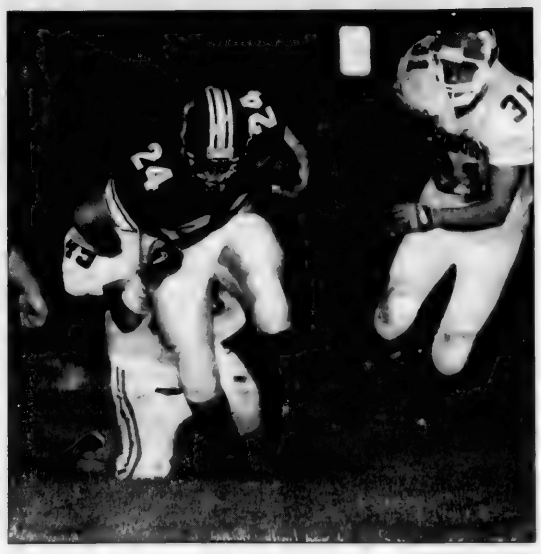
User fees for riding the bus, playing sports at Andover High

Parents will pay more this year





FILE PHOTOS BY TIM JEAN

Riding the bus to school will cost many parents $300 per student this coming year, with a maximum of $600 per family. Playing a sport at Andover High will cost a one-time fee of $250 per student, regardless of how many sports that student-athlete plays.

By Ben Hellman

PARENTS WILL PAY MORE for their children to ride the bus to school and to play a single sport at Andover High School this coming school year. The School Committee has decided to raise more money through user fees.

Andover High School students playing sports will pay a one-time fee of $250, which will allow a student to play one, two or three sports. A family will not be charged more than $500, no matter how many children they have playing sports. Last year, students paid $100 per sport.

Also, it will cost $65 more to ride the bus to school this coming year. The cost is $300 per student, with no family having to pay more than $600 total.

Parents of bus riders in grades 7 to 12 can avoid a late penalty fee of $50 by turning in their transportation fee before the school business office closes at noon tomorrow, Friday, July 30. Checks should be made payable to the Andover Public Schools.

Sports fees

The new athletic user fee policy for Andover High School students has caused controversy, reported Dave Nichols, co-athletic director.

The higher fee will charge all student-athletes the same amount, regardless of the number of sports they play, giving more value to students who play more than one sport.

While last year's fee was $100 per sport, Nichols said the school would have had to charge about $150 per sport this year if the department followed the same formula. That's because the School Committee wants to raise $200,000 through athletic fees this year, $50,000 more than last year. That would amount to 800 students paying the $250 fee.

Nichols said parents have complained that their children's sports are less expensive than others, or that their child does not play three sports and should not pay the same amount as someone who does.

Nichols said trying to calculate the exact cost of each team is difficult because of the many factors involved, such as the cost of busing, officials, rental items or maintenance of facilities.

"To make each sport (a) different (cost) would be almost impossible," said Nichols. "The fairest way seems to be to implement one fee."

Last year the Athletics Department failed to come up with the $150,000 expected through user fees, raising only $143,000. The remainder was covered through ticket sales to games, said Nichols. But ticket sales cannot be counted on as a revenue stream every year, said Nichols.

"We can't depend on having great seasons," he said.

No student will be turned away from playing a sport, said Nichols. Students who are eligible financially can apply for a waiver of the fee, he said.

The waiver forms may be picked up in the AHS athletics office or at Nichols' office on the third floor of the school administration building on Whittier Court.

BOOK REVIEW

Edgar & Ellen: Tourist Trap

BY CHARLES OGDEN

Reviewed by John Chartier and James Caron

This week, 15-year-old Andover residents John and James warn young readers not to judge a novel by its cover.

THERE ARE SOME BOOKS that are so intricately crafted, they are disappointing to finish. Then there are books whose plots are such mindless rubbish, the reader will break into random fits of crying because they are so painful to read. Edgar & Ellen: Tourist Trap falls much closer to the latter.

Two particularly morbid children, Edgar and Ellen, spend their days lurking in their light-deprived house and playing in their tetanus-ridden junkyard, which doubles as a graveyard. The mayor of their city, Nod's Limbs, decides that it needs a makeover (no, really?) so he plans to have celebrities come to attract more tourists. This triggers Edgar and Ellen's plan to save their junkyard. Trust us, it's not nearly as interesting as it sounds.

The highlight of this book is the cover. We know that's a sad commentary, but we're serious.

In fact, the artwork is fantastically intriguing. Please, do not make the same mistake that we did; heed that timeless warning that one is constantly receiving. Do NOT judge a book by its cover – you may find you want to hit yourself over the head with it later.

The whole time that we were reading Edgar & Ellen: Tourist Trap, it never seemed to really go anywhere. There was not any real action that made us want to keep reading. The only reason that we kept reading this garbage bound in hardcover was the hope that some event would drive the plot in one way or another. There are no such events in this book.

We give this book a teetering 2 out of 10. The two is simply for the great pen and ink artwork done by Rick Carton. We can say that the characters of Edgar and Ellen were strongly established, but there was no growth whatsoever through the book.

One last, strong point: the description was in depth at some points, but at others it seemed to drag out the story and make for some very dull reading.

This book is best suited for the back of one's closet – or Edgar and Ellen's junkyard. Enough said.

Your Dental Health
by Richard D. Hopgood, D.M.D., F.A.G.D.

WHITE ON WHITE

At one time or another, we all have had our attention drawn to someone's teeth which display unnaturally-white areas. These unattractive white spots are known as hypoplastic lesions and may result from several causes. In young people, an insufficient supply of calcium at the time of tooth formation may result in the development of the white areas. In older people, the cause may rest with the dissolution of tooth enamel. People who chronically breath with their mouths open may develop the condition due to tooth dehydration. In any case, the unsightly patches of white may be covered over with a thin veneer of bonding material that is sculpted and polished to look natural. Otherwise, longer-lasting porcelain veneers offer a cosmetic solution. The result is a more pleasing and attractive smile.

It's hard to smile when you have a dental problem. If missing, neglected, or unattractive teeth prevent you from smiling, take care of the problem with the help of your dentist. We care how you feel and work with you to help you achieve optimal oral health. For complete, gentle dental care for everyone in your family, using the latest techniques, equipment, and materials, please call us at 978-475-296 Lowell Street (Rt 133). We have easy access off Rt. 93

P.S. A new technique for removing hypoplastic lesions involves the application of a paste of hydrochloric acid and pumice

Post 8 earns state tournament berth

Andover's team wins 4 games to sweep past Lowell Post 87 and Newburyport Post 150

By Rick Harrison

A CLUTCH TWO-OUT RBI SINGLE in the bottom of the eighth inning by Matt Hogan drove home the winning run, rewarding another outstanding pitching performance by Dan Godefroi as the Andover Post 8 American Legion baseball team qualified for the Massachusetts State Tournament for the seventh time in 15 years.

Hogan's single, which plated Joel Keefe, put the finishing touch on a 4-3 win over Newburyport Post 150 at Peter Aumais Field.

It also completed a perfect 4-0 run for Post 8 through a pair of best-of-3 preliminary round playoff series, as the locals swept both Lowell Post 87 and Newburyport.

Andover (18-3 record) travels to Greenfield tomorrow to prepare for the eight-team State Tournament, which opens Saturday morning at 9:30 a.m. with Andover facing a Western Mass. opponent whose identity was unknown at presstime.

If Andover wins it plays again on Sunday at 4:30 p.m., while a loss would put the locals in a survival game Sunday morning at 9:30 a.m.

The double-elimination tourney continues at Veterans Memorial Park in Greenfield through next Wednesday.

The other qualifiers known at presstime are Andover's District 8 rival, the Swampscott Mariners, and the host Post 150 of Greenfield.

Swampscott, 20-1 overall, advanced by sweeping past Wakefield and North Reading/Conrad Vinal Post 313.

Andover, 34-7-1 last two years, has yet to win a state title in six previous tries since 1990, but Post 8 reached the championship game twice and finished third once.

Ironically, the last time Andover played in the State Tournament was 2000 when it was also hosted by Greenfield.

Worcester is the defending Massachusetts state champ.

The state champ moves on to the Region 1 Tournament Aug. 12-16 at Lanoni Stadium in Middletown, Conn.

The Legion World Series is scheduled Aug. 22-29 in Corvallis, Oregon.

"It's a terrific accomplishment for these kids to make it to states," said Post 8 manager Joe Iarrobino. "They show up every day, play hard and they know how to win."

Iarrobino also lauded the outstanding work of longtime assistant coaches Kevin Rourke and Keith Grant, who are instrumental in keeping the Post 8 players focused and prepared.

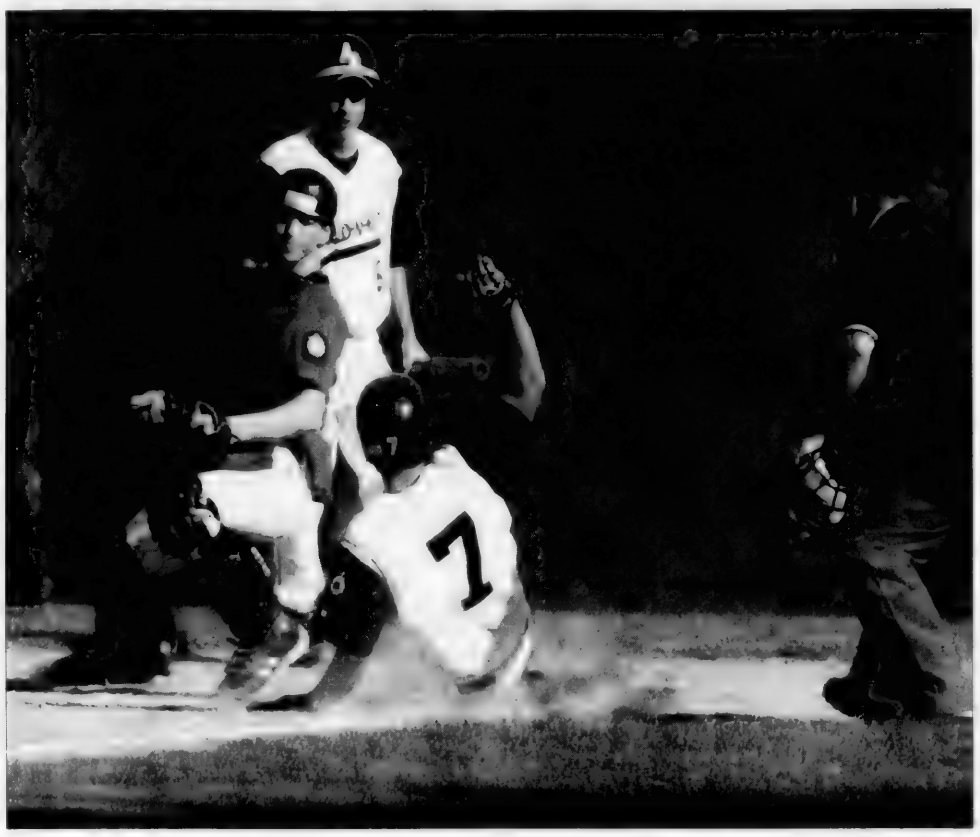
Although, at presstime they were trying to find closer accomodations, the Post 8 contingent may have to stay in Brattleboro, Vt. for the duration of the tourney.

Post 8 also beat Newburyport 14-7 in the opening game of the second-round series at Newburyport High.

District 8 fourth seed Newburyport (15-7) had advanced by ousting District 5 top seed Sudbury (17-3-1) in three games.

Against Lowell (19-7), Andover snapped a 14-game Post 87 win streak with a convincing 8-0 victory at Aumais Park before completing the sweep with a 10-6 triumph 24 hours later at Stoklosa Alumni Field in Lowell.

Andover and Lowell have built a playoff history, with Post 8 beating Lowell three of the last six years. Andover won back-to-back series in 1999 and 2000 before Lowell ousted the locals two years ago.



Ryan Shepard (No. 7) is safe at the plate with Andover's third run, as Post 8 hosted Post 150 of Newburyport in American Legion baseball action. Post 8 defeated Post 150 twice, by scores of 14-7 in Newburyport, and 4-3 at Peter Aumais Field (above).

Dan Godefroi pitched Post 8 into the Massachusetts State Tournament as the locals swept both the Lowell Post 87 and Newburyport teams in preliminary playoff series.

Injury report

Post 8 second baseman Matt Iorio, brilliant in the series opener against Lowell, was a casualty of the rock-hard infield at Lowell's Stoklosa Alumni Field.

During a game-winning rally in game two, a grounder took a bad hop and struck Iorio in the cheekbone, just under his left eye.

The blow opened a large gash and he missed the rest of the game and went to the hospital.

After being examined by a plastic surgeon, and getting four stitches three days after Iorio was back in the lineup for the first game of the Newburyport series.

He looked the worse for wear as he [illegible] scored two runs, drove in one and made [illegible] errors in the field.

Pitcher Craig Lanciani hurt his pitching (right) arm in the fourth inning of the first Newburyport game, shortly after taking a line drive off the area just above the elbow.

"He was on the mound and felt a snap in the bicep/tricep area just below the shoulder after throwing a pitch," said Iarrobino, who took Lanciani out immediately.

He was scheduled for an MRI earlier this week and his availability was unknown at presstime.

If Lanciani (3-0, three saves) cannot go, the Andover pitching staff will consist of Dan Godefroi, Kyle Ahern, Patrick Bateson, Tom Arrigg and Peter Burke-Wallace.

Mike Fortier remained sidelined through the first two playoff series, but should be available for the State Tournament.

He suffered an 18-stitch gash to his shin in a freak accident while working at a summer baseball camp, running into the bottom stump of a stop sign covered by a construction cone.

The stitches were removed Monday and there is a good chance Fortier will be available by the weekend.

STATE PLAYOFFS
SECOND ROUND
GAME 1
Andover 14
Newburyport 7

Post 8 pounded out 17 hits against a depleted Newburyport pitching corps as the home team used six hurlers in a desperate attempt to cool down the locals' bats.

"We hit the ball hard and played good defense, but it was a far cry from the regular season game when we beat them 4-3," said Iarrobino.

With neither club's ace available to throw, Andover jumped ahead 3-0 in the top of the second. Ryan Shepard walked, Dan Godefroi beat out a bunt, Matt Hogan and Brian Buckley laced RBI singles and Tim Hughes hoisted a sac-fly.

After Newburyport tied it 3-3 in the third, Post 8 took the lead for good with a three-run fourth.

Matt Iorio, playing with a bandaged cheekbone, drilled a double to left-center and scored on Jarrett Mackin's single. Mackin stole second and crossed on Joel Keefe's one-out single. Keefe moved up on the throw home and raced around when Shepard singled.

A four-run fifth started with a single by Hogan and sac-bunt from Tim Hughes. Paul Malaguti drilled an RBI single, took second on the throw home, and advanced to third when Iorio's grounder was misplayed.

Mackin smacked an RBI single, he and Iorio worked a double steal, and Buckley followed with a two-run single to make it 10-4.

A four-run seventh capped the Post 8 scoring, with the key strokes a leadoff triple to left by Malaguti, RBI single by Iorio, two-run single to left-center by Keefe and a two-out RBI single from Hogan.

Hogan contributed three safeties to the 17-hit barrage while Iorio, Mackin, Buckley, Keefe, Shepard and Malaguti laced two each.

Andrew Hennessy drilled a double that did not figure in the scoring.

Mackin scored three runs and crossing twice apiece were Iorio, Keefe, Hogan and Malaguti.

Buckley drove in three runs, Mackin two, Keefe two and Hogan two.

Hogan played a solid defensive game at first base and Iorio at second.

"It was a gutsy performance by Iorio (cheekbone injury)," said Iarrobino. "We really didn't know until gametime if he'd be in the lineup. He wanted to play and both his parents and the doctor signed off on it."

Craig Lanciani started and pitched the first 3 1/3 innings before complaining of pain in his right shoulder. He yielded five hits and three runs while fanning four and walking one.

Kyle Ahern worked the next 3 2/3 innings, permitting three hits and three runs. He struck out four and walked two.

Tim Arrigg mopped up with two frames of one-hit relief, whiffing two and issuing no walks.

"I was glad to see Ahern come in and be effective," said Iarrobino. "He threw 58 pitches and looked pretty sharp."

GAME 2
Andover 4
Newburyport 3

After Newburyport rallied for three runs in the top of the eighth, wiping out a 3-0 Andover lead, Post 8 came through with the winning run in the home half.

Joel Keefe singled to right-center, Ryan Shepard bunted him to second, and Matt Hogan laced a clutch two-out single to center to chase home the game- and series-clinching run.

Fifteen-year-old lefthander Dan Godefroi, whose summer record improved to an impressive 7-1, set Post 150 down 1-2-3 in the top of the ninth with a grounder to short, strikeout and routine flyout to right field.

Godefroi, who threw 119 pitches, scattered seven hits while fanning six and walking only one. All three Newburyport runs were unearned.

Post 150 pitcher Russ Willett, who plays at UMass Lowell, also went the distance while allowing eight hits, walking six and whiffing five.

Andover scored its first run in the opening stanza when Brian Buckley drilled a two-out double to right-center and crossed on Keefe's single.

In the fourth Keefe walked and stole second. Shepard followed with a laser-beam liner that went over the leftfielder's head and struck the top of the chain-link fence on the fly for an RBI double.

Tim Hughes' two-out single to center rescued Shepard to boost the locals' lead to 3-0.

In the Post 150 eighth an infield error, passed ball and single set the stage for a long two-run double to right-center by Chris Deranian. He scored the tying run on a poor throw to third as he tried to stretch the hit to a triple.

Newburyport had several other threats throughout the game.

In the second inning a 5-4-3 double play got Godefroi out of potential trouble.

In the third Post 150 tried a delayed steal of home, but the runner on third was caught in a rundown and tagged out.

With a runner aboard in the fifth, third baseman Buckley made an outstanding diving stop and threw the batter out from his knees.

A pair of leadoff singles put two on with no outs in the seventh, but a 6-4-3 twin-killing blunted this bid.

Keefe and Hughes led the eight-hit Andover attack with two each, while Hogan contributed a single.

Leary went 3-for-4 to spark Newburyport.

FIRST ROUND
GAME 1
Andover 8
Lowell 0

Dan Godefroi, who won't turn 16 until next February, pitched eight masterful innings of eight-hit, shutout ball in the series opener.

He struck out seven, walked one, threw 109 pitches and didn't allow a Lowell runner beyond second base on the way to his sixth victory.

"As usual, Danny hit his spots and was poised and smart out there," said Iarrobino. "It's hard to believe he's only 15.

"Give him all the credit in the world," said Lowell manager Matt Stone. "He kept us off balance.

"We're a good-hitting team — and we hit some balls hard — but their infielders made some Major League plays behind him. And he also had a couple of key pick-offs."

Six of Andover's first seven hits went for extra bases, as the locals sprayed screaming line drives all over their home field.

"We played about as well as we can play," said Iarrobino. "Timely hits, great

LITTLE LEAGUE STATE TOURNAMENT

Nationals' bid for State Tournament comes up one game short

By Rick Harrison

THE ANDOVER NATIONAL MAJOR 11-12 Little League All-Stars fell one game short of qualifying for the 2004 Massachusetts State Tournament, which would have been the third appearance in the last six years for Andover teams.

The locals came so close after playing a series of edge-of-your-seat games, battling to the championship round of the four-team, double-elimination Section 4 Tournament at Harry Ball Field in Beverly.

After four pressure-packed contests – all decided by one or two runs – the drained Andover crew lost to Wakefield National in a one-sided title game.

The tourney opened with a 7-5 loss to District 13 champ Wakefield, as the locals left the bases loaded in the bottom of the final inning.

That was followed by a come-from-behind 7-6 triumph over Hamilton-Wenham, as A-N erased a 6-0 late-game deficit with five runs in the fifth and two in the sixth on huge RBI hits by C.J. Leary and Matt Gadziala.

The Cardiac Kids added another pulsating win over Lynn Wyoma in the loser's bracket final, 1-0, with Lynn leaving the bases loaded as complete-game winning pitcher Alex Patti struck out the last two batters.

In the championship round, A-N was faced with the task of beating undefeated Wakefield twice in the same night.

The locals came through with a 2-0 triumph in the opening game of the doubleheader, Spencer Rose authoring a mound gem, but couldn't sustain the momentum as Wakefield registered a 9-0 victory in the winner-take-all Section 4 final.

District 14 champ Andover National finished the summer 8-2 overall, 3-2 in the sectionals and 5-0 in the district tourney.

Wakefield National, 8-1 overall, moves on to the four-team double-elimination State Tournament finals beginning tonight (Thursday) in Middleboro.

"The sectionals were fantastic for us," said A-N manager Len Driscoll. "All four teams came in undefeated. We were evenly matched and all of the games until the last one were close. The competition was really heightened in this tourney.

"We were able to beat the other three teams once each, and we finished as one of the top eight teams in Massachusetts.

"Hats off to Wakefield," continued Driscoll. "They're an excellent team. They won it and they earned it. I'm proud of the fact that so far we're the only team in the state to beat them.

"The first game of this tournament – the 7-5 loss to Wakefield – was the one that really hurt us. It put us in a big hole and gave Wakefield the pitching advantage. They were able to go through using only two pitchers. We didn't have that luxury.

"Our kids worked very hard from the first practice and exceeded expectations," noted Driscoll. "As far as the final goes, we'd been in four straight pressure games in three days. It's hard for anyone – let alone a group of 12-year-old kids – to sustain that kind of pace."

Andover National outscored its 10 summer opponents by a 46-29 margin.

STATE SECTION 4 TOURNAMENT
GAME 1
Wakefield National 7
Andover National 5

The tourney opener went down to the final pitch as Andover left the bases loaded in the bottom half of the last inning.

The locals clawed back from 3-0 and 6-3 deficits before falling just short and suffering their first loss of the summer.

"The kids were a little nervous at the start – but they got over it quickly and battled from behind all night," said manager Driscoll.

"We didn't play as well defensively as we did in the district tournament. We were a half-step off. We bobbled a couple of their bunts and missed one or two plays at the plate."

Spencer Rose, in his tournament debut, was outstanding on the mound.

He pitched the final three innings, allowing three hits and one run while fanning seven and walking one.

He struck out the side in the fifth and whiffed two batters in both the fourth and sixth innings.

"Wakefield threw a big lefty against us," said Driscoll. "He was solidly built and he could bring the ball.

"He struck out 11 – but our kids hung in and hit the ball pretty hard. Basically we needed one more big hit (to win the game)."

After Wakefield National jumped ahead 3-0 in the top of the second, A-N matched it with a three-run rally in the home half.

Matt Gadziala singled, Kris Riemer walked and Jake Ponti smacked an RBI double to right field. Mark Vetere's fielder's choice grounder rescued Riemer, and Alex Driscoll tied the game with a single to center.

Wakefield regained the lead with three runs in the third, and it remained 6-3 until Andover notched its final two in the fifth.

Starting pitcher Alex Patti belted a long solo homer way over the left field fence, and the second run crossed after singles by C.J. Leary, Gadziala and Ponti (RBI).

A-N almost tied the game again on Ponti's hit, but a runner was thrown out at the plate on a very close play.

Wakefield National tacked on an insurance run in the sixth to boost its lead to 7-5.

Andover refused to go quietly in the bottom of the sixth.

Rose walked and Driscoll reached on a fielder's choice. After a strikeout, Patti laced a two-out single and Chris McConnell walked to load the bases.

The count went to 3-2 on the next batter before a strikeout ended the game.

Gadziala, Patti and Ponti led the nine-hit attack with two each, while Danny Colombo clouted a double.

GAME 2
Loser's Bracket
Andover National 7
Hamilton-Wenham 6

Showing a tremendous amount of resilience, Andover bounced back from its first loss and a 6-0 deficit in this game to keep its tourney hopes alive.

Twice the Nationals were one batter and one strike away from elimination, but a pair of clutch sixth-inning singles by C.J. Leary and Matt Gadziala clinched the dramatic win.

"We had a great feeling after this game," said manager Driscoll. "The kids never quit – down 6-0 with two innings left. We climbed out of a huge hole."

Hamilton-Wenham, which dropped a 4-2 decision to Lynn Wyoma in its opener, scored twice in the first and added four runs in the top of the fifth.

"We didn't have much luck against their pitcher the first four innings," said Driscoll. "But he threw 95 pitches to that point. They left him in the game — and even though he was still throwing hard — we eventually wore him down.

"In the fifth and sixth innings we went base-to-base, station-to station, with a bunch of singles and walks," said Driscoll. "It was tedious but effective."

The Nationals sent 10 batters to the plate in the fifth, mounting a five-run rally to trim their deficit to one.

Spencer Rose singled, Mike Cahill walked and Alex Driscoll singled to load the bases.

Dan Colombo laced an RBI single to put Andover on the board. Alex Patti walked to force home a run and Leary drew a one-out walk to make it 6-3.

Matt Gadziala stroked a grounder to the H-W second baseman — and everyone was safe when the throw home was too late to get Colombo.

The final A-N run of the inning scored when Kyle Ponti's shallow fly ball to right-center was dropped.

Driscoll (1-0) pitched the sixth and notched the victory in relief, retiring Hamilton-Wenham on a strikeout and double play after the first batter reached on an infield error.

Driscoll also launched the winning two-run rally in the bottom of the sixth with a one-out single. Colombo singled and both runners advanced on a grounder to first.

Down to its final out and strike, A-N persevered when Chris McConnell walked on a 3-2 pitch to load the bases.

Leary tied the game with a two-strike RBI single to center, and Gadziala singled to right field to chase home the winning run and eliminate Hamilton-Wenham.

Driscoll and Colombo were tough outs at the top of the order, both finishing 3-for-4, while Gadziala was 2-for-2.

Gadziala pitched the first two innings but left the mound after his elbow stiffened.

Reliever Kris Riemer blanked Hamilton-Wenham in the third and fourth before struggling through the fifth.

Alex Patti played a strong defensive game at third base. "He settled things down," said Driscoll.

GAME 3
Loser's Bracket Final
Andover National 1
Lynn Wyoma 0

Alex Patti (3-1) fired a route-going two-hitter and escaped a bases-loaded sixth-inning jam as the Nationals moved to the championship round.

It was their third shutout of the summer, and the second for Patti, as he struck out five, walked two and hit one batter.

Losing pitcher Eric Fiste was almost as good, yielding four hits while whiffing five, issuing no walks and also hitting one (Patti).

"Unlike the opening game against Wakefield, we played huge against Lynn's small-ball tactics," said manager Driscoll.

"Our kids were unbelievable. A 1-0 game at this stage against this level of competition is as good as it gets."

The Nationals, held to one run for the first time this summer, scored in the first inning of a game that flew by in one hour.

With two outs Patti was hit on the right (throwing) hand by a pitch, and he circled the bases when Chris McConnell followed with a line-drive double up the gap in right-center.

C.J. Leary singled, putting runners at the corners, before a ground-out ended the inning.

Andover would never threaten again, managing only a pair of two-out singles by Patti in the third and Alex Driscoll in the fifth.

Lynn Wyoma, whose other loss was 2-1 to Wakefield National in the opening round, loaded the bases with one out in both the first and sixth innings.

In between those bookend rallies Patti was untouchable, retiring 14 consecutive batters and relying on some outstanding defensive support from his infielders.

Lynn's only two hits, both singles, were sandwiched around a defense and terrific pitching. This was definitely one night everything went our way."

Post 8 took a 2-0 lead in the second inning when Capt. Joel Keefe (3-for-3) blasted a towering triple to right-center. Capt. Ryan Shepard dropped an opposite-field RBI double into right and Tim Hughes stroked a two-out RBI double to right field.

In the third Jarrett Mackin doubled to left, advanced on a wild pitch and crossed when Shepard laid down a suicide squeeze.

A four-run fifth started with a single by Paul Malaguti, bunt single by Matt Iorio and sacrifice bunt by Mackin.

Capt. Brian Buckley drilled a two-run double down the left field line to the fence, and crossed when Keefe smacked a two-bagger off the rightfielder's glove.

Godefroi made it 7-0 by smashing a triple to right field plating Keefe.

The final run came in the seventh as Mackin was hit by a pitch, moved to third on Keefe's single up the middle, and tagged on Shepard's long sac-fly.

Lowell's most serious scoring threat came in the ninth when Pat Donovan led with a single off Godefroi.

"I took Danny out at that point because he had thrown 109 pitches," said Iarrobino. "He wanted the complete-game, but we were up 8-0 and it made no sense to leave him in there. He understood."

Post 87 DH Matt Lawlor drew a walk on a 3-2 pitch by reliever Kyle Ahern, and the runners moved into scoring position on an infield out.

Ahern preserved the shutout by retiring the next batter on a game-ending grounder to shortstop Malaguti.

Keefe was 3-for-3 with a near-cycle single, double and triple, while Malaguti added two hits and Shepard drove in three runs with his double, suicide squeeze and sac-fly.

Defensive standouts were second baseman Matt Iorio, with two hit-robbing diving stops, and third baseman Buckley with a similar face-in-the-dirt play.

GAME 2
Andover 10
Lowell 6

Joel Keefe went 3-for-3 for the second straight game while Ryan Shepard, Jarrett Mackin and Brian Buckley drove in two runs each as Post 8 completed the series sweep.

After squandering early 3-0 and 5-2 leads, Andover broke a 6-6 tie with four runs in the eighth and rode solid relief pitching by winner Tom Arrigg (2-1) and Craig Lanciani (third save).

"This game was nowhere as crisp as the opener," said Iarrobino. "But their field was rock-hard which created some tough hops on grounders. Both teams made a few errors — but we made plays when we needed to and came through with clutch hits."

Paul Malaguti started the pivotal four-run eighth with a single to right, moving to second when the outfielder bobbled the ball. With one out Andrew Hennessy laid down a bunt and both runners were safe.

Mackin broke the deadlock with an RBI double to left-center, and Buckley plated Hennessy with his second sac-fly of the game.

Keefe, who went 6-for-6 in the series and reached base nine straight times, followed with a walk before Shepard rescued two more insurance runs by cracking an opposite-field double to right-center.

Post 8 grabbed a 3-0 lead in the third as Malaguti walked, Matt Iorio doubled to left-center, Mackin ripped an RBI single, Buckley hoisted a sac-fly and Keefe singled home Mackin.

After Lowell (19-7) notched an unearned run off starter Patrick Bateson in the bottom of the third, Andover pushed across two more runs with a two-out rally in the fourth.

The pesky Malaguti singled, stole second and scored when Iorio drilled a base hit to center. He advanced on a passed ball and crossed as Mackin's infield grounder was misplayed.

Matt Lawlor cleared the fence in left-center with a bases-empty fourth-inning homer for Lowell, and the host team tied it with three in the fifth as Brendan Akashian, Pat Donovan and Lawlor lashed RBI singles.

"We ended the fifth with a big defensive play that seemed to take the wind out of their sails," said Iarrobino.

Post 87 had pulled even and was threatening for more, but center-fielder Mackin turned straw to gold after he hesitated on a shallow fly ball. The Lowell runners were confused, getting caught between bases, and it ended up in a rundown for an odd rally-killing double play.

The rivals traded runs in the seventh, with Andover scoring when Keefe singled, Shepard bunted him to second and Matt Hogan smacked an RBI single to right-center.

Lowell countered in the home half to make it 6-6 – but also left the potential go-ahead runs stranded.

That set the stage for the Andover eighth that broke Lowell's back.

Post 87's last gasp came in the ninth when a walk and error put the first two batters aboard.

Lanciani bore down to get the next three hitters on a fielder's choice grounder, strikeout and fly-out to center.

Bateson allowed six hits and five runs, only two earned, over the first 5 1/3 innings.

Arrigg followed with 2 2/3 frames of two-hit middle relief, yielding one run, and Lanciani mopped up with hitless ball in the eighth and ninth.

Keefe went 3-for-3, and adding two safeties each to an 11-hit attack were Mackin (two RBI, two runs scored), Malaguti (RBI, three runs) and Iorio (RBI, two runs).

fielder's choice grounder in the top of the first.

After a walk loaded the bases, A-N second baseman Alex Driscoll scooped a grounder and threw home for a forceout.

Danny Colombo then handled a fielder's choice grounder to short, flipping to Driscoll for the inning-ending out.

In the sixth an error, hit batsman and walk loaded the bases for Wyoma, setting the stage for Patti who bowed his back and responded to the challenge by fanning the next two hitters to end the game.

Defensively, third baseman Jake Ponti stopped a sizzler down the line and threw the batter out at first.

Colombo, meanwhile, finished with five assists and a putout in a flawless six-chance performance at short.

GAME 4
CHAMPIONSHIP ROUND
Andover National 2
Wakefield National 0

Spencer Rose (1-0) was overpowering as he fired the locals' second straight complete-game two-hit shutout, handing Wakefield its first loss of the summer.

Rose, a hidden jewel that didn't have to pitch in the districts, struck out 9, didn't walk a batter and hit one. He fanned the side in the fourth, whiffed two in the fifth and ended the game with a K.

He allowed a pair of singles, in the second and third innings, and faced only 20 batters (two over minimum) as a double play wiped out one baserunner.

Rose threw only 66 pitches and no Wakefield player reached second base.

"They didn't have anything close to a threat," said Driscoll. "Spencer did an excellent job mixing up his pitches. At the end he looked like he could have thrown another six innings."

Both A-N runs crossed on passed balls.

In the second C.J. Leary doubled to right field before courtesy runner Paul Hunter took third and home on a wild pitch and passed ball.

The insurance run came in the fourth after Adam Devine singled. Courtesy runner Chris McConnell then circled the bases on a series of passed balls.

The first Wakefield runner in the second inning was wiped out by a 1-6-3 double play involving Rose, shortstop Dan Colombo and first baseman Alex Patti.

Rose hit the leadoff batter in the sixth before retiring the next three Wakefield hitters to close out the game.

Contributing a hit each for Andover were Colombo (double) and Patti (single).

Jake Ponti made a nice diving catch in center field in the sixth to highlight A-N's defensive play.

GAME 5
CHAMPIONSHIP ROUND
FINAL GAME
Wakefield National 9
Andover National 0

A-N managed only five singles and fell victim to a sensational offensive performance by Wakefield cleanup batter Kevin Federico.

"We just didn't have any juice left for this game," said manager Driscoll. "We were tired at bat and in the field."

Federico went 4-for-4 with five RBI and two runs scored, belting a two-run double in the first and blasting a three-run homer in the fourth.

Wakefield scored three times in the first frame and added a run in the third, three in the fourth and two in the fifth.

Four Andover pitchers combined to allow 12 hits, walk six and strike out only two.

The third inning was the turning point.

Trailing only 4-0, A-N loaded the bases with two out and brought the tying run to the plate.

A huge strikeout ended that threat, and Wakefield fed off that K by scoring five runs over the next two innings to break it wide open.

The third-inning threat was mounted on singles by Mark Vetere, Alex Driscoll and a walk to Dan Colombo.

Colombo, Jake Ponti and C.J. Leary contributed a single each to round out Andover's five-hit attack.

Wakefield National's 1-2 hitters O'Brien and Taylor came up big, both going 2-for-3 with O'Brien scoring three runs.

The Summer Theatre Ensemble and the Department of Community Services presents Grease next weekend, Aug. 6 and 7, at the Collins Center at Andover High School. The opening scene of the performance, "Born to hand jive," was being rehearsed by the cast on Monday, July 26.

Summer Theater Ensemble and DCS production

Grease turns back the clock

By Ben Hellman

THEATER GROUPS OFTEN FACE challenges in putting on their shows, but having a set piece towed away by the authorities might be a first. When the Summer Theater Ensemble deposited its salvaged 1964 Thunderbird in the Andover High School parking lot last week, Andover police had it towed away.

The Thunderbird will be "Greased Lightning," the imaginary dream car of the "T-Bird" gang in the musical Grease. The curtain will rise on Grease a week from Friday at the Collins Center, and again the next day, Saturday, Aug. 7.

Summer Theater Ensemble is a four-week theater day camp run by South Elementary School teacher Elly Seavey through Andover's Department of Community Services.

Those involved with the musical found the gutted junker at a local salvage yard, and figured it would save the tech crew from building something out of wood or foam, said tech worker and Andover High graduate Michael Berger.

"We left it outside and we got here the next morning and the police (had) towed it," said Berger.

The car was returned without charge and is now safely stowed on the Collins Center stage, awaiting further safety measures to allow the cast to sing and dance on it. The crew has already turned it into a convertible by cutting off its roof, but not much more work will be done, said Robin Allison, the director.

The car will transform into the beauty "draggin' wagon" only in the minds of the teens singing about her.

"We all wanted to paint it, but we got the no go. If someone were to put their heart in it, I think it would look like a pretty cool car," said Berger.

Who's who

The boy playing head greaser Danny Zucco is a tech crew member turned leading man. Phillips Academy sophomore Steve Farquhar, 15, has been working tech crew for three years and is playing his first role.

When Wood Hill Middle School's auditorium opened its doors, Farquhar, then a student there, proved so indispensable to operating the lighting systems that he was entrusted with keys to the auditorium.

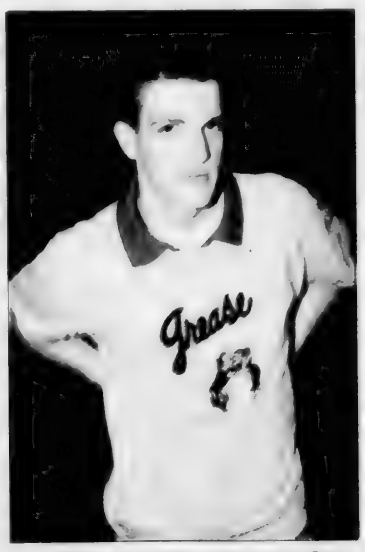
Farquhar is running a camp for incoming Wood Hill Middle students at the end of the summer to teach them about the auditorium's lighting system. "We just want to see it keep going because it's a nice facility," said Farquhar.

Farquhar credits his success in Grease to his singing ability, bolstered this year by voice lessons and singing in the Phillips chorus. "What kind of drew me in (to auditioning) was the music," said Farquhar. "I have to work on my attitude. Going from a preppie (Phillips Academy student) to a greaser is a bit of a jump."

Milton Academy sophomore Jocelyn Greene, 15, of North Andover is playing opposite Farquhar as Sandy. Greene credits STE with attracting her to the theater. "I did it four years ago and it opened my eyes to musical theater," said Greene.

Andover High sophomore Brad Buitenhuys, 15, is playing Danny's sidekick. Kenickie Buitenhuys performed his first show with STE last summer and was bit by the theater bug. He performed in five more shows at Andover High and in town this year. "In the eighth grade, my mother said, 'You should do something,' so I picked the most time-consuming thing," said Buitenhuys.

Andover High freshman Hannah Hastings, 14, is playing Rizzo and has made up a back story for her character to make her actions more meaningful on stage. "You have to have more than what you're doing on stage. There has to be a reason to all you do," said Hastings.



Phillips Academy sophomore Steve Farquhar, 15, plays the lead greaser, Danny Zucco. At right, Jocelyn Greene, 15, of North Andover, a Milton Academy sophomore, will play Sandy.

Sunrise Singers celebrate a successful visit to England

By Jack Taylor
Chairman,
Andover Town Twinning Association

Twenty-six members of the Andover Sister Towns Association of Massachusetts have completed a very successful week-long visit to their sister town – Andover, England. The visitors were hosted in English homes and sixteen members of the group were part of the Andover Senior Center's Sunrise Singers.

Judy Goonyep, of 2 Willard Circle, president of the Andover Sister Towns Association, said, "It was so good to visit England again and see our old friends. Many of our members stayed with the English who visited us two years ago. We all had a lovely time."

A very interesting program of events and visits was enjoyed by the group. After a conducted tour of the historical parts of Andover, they attended a reception at Andover's Guildhall hosted by the Deputy Mayor of Test Valley, Peter Boulton. The following day, they visited a nearby Iron Age Fort and Andover's Museum accompanied by the curator, David Allen. They were then given tea by an English seniors club and the Sunrise Singers showed their talent by entertaining the English seniors with a selection of songs.

A visit to the town of Bath, including the Roman Hot Springs, was followed the next day by a conducted tour of Winchester's 12th century Great Hall and a visit to the cathedral, where the Sunrise Singers were permitted to sing Dona Nobis Pacem in the Lady Chapel.

Linda Kirk, conductor of the Sunrise Singers, said, "Being able to sing in Winchester Cathedral was a once-in-a-lifetime experience afforded to few people. We were lucky and honored."

On the Friday evening at a packed Broughton Village Hall, the Sunrise Singers combined with the Harlequin Singers of Andover and the Traditional Arts Group of Broughton to put on a superb musical entertainment, culminating in all three choirs combining for the last four numbers.

Except for a Saturday evening hog roast and dance, the weekend was free, with hosts

Singers travel in style

By Andrea Gregory

When 15 singing senior citizens and 10 of their travel companions returned from a week in Andover, England, they did not have to fear the travel chaos of the Democratic National Convention.

Although the convention began Monday, July 26, the same day as their return flight, the group was able to avoid the heart of the DNC-driven traffic woes, thanks to the assistance of the town's twinning association and its state senator.

Certainly, the traffic could have had the Sunrise Singers, an Andover Senior Center choir, singing the blues as they tried to make their way out of Boston's Logan Airport. Private vehicles were not allowed to pull up to the terminals. With roads such as Interstate 93 in Boston closed or limited, that would have been an unpleasant way to end the group's first international tour.

When the trip was first booked, no one realized that their return date coincided with the kick-off of the convention, said Edwin Goonyep, whose wife, Judy Goonyep, president of the Andover Sister Town Association, accompanied the Sunrise Singers on the trip.

"That would be a hassle for people their age, especially," he said. The average age in the group is 77.

Edwin Goonyep sent state Sen. Sue Tucker an e-mail, informing her of the dilemma.

Tucker made a few phone calls and in about two days, had the problem solved. An express bus was scheduled to pick up the Andover travelers and drive them to Woburn, where Goonyep and other drivers from the senior center would be waiting to escort them home in vans.

"I was very pleased to help," said Tucker. "I am so proud to have the Sunrise Singers representing Andover. It's exciting for the town. "I'm a proud owner of the (Sunrise Singers') CD," she added.

Tucker said she is using public transportation to make her way in and out of the convention.

According to Pat Becker, senior center program coordinator, the group arrived back safe and sound on Monday, and word around the senior center is that everyone who went on the overseas journey had a great time.

and visitors enjoyed many different events and visits.

At the hog roast, Jack Taylor, chairman of the Andover Town Twinning Association, presented Judy Goonyep with a framed photograph of the statue of Chief Cutshamache, which was erected in England in June 2000 to commemorate the joining of the two Andovers. In return, Taylor accepted two Boston Gurgling Cods for his Twinning Association.

On the way to Heathrow for departure, the group visited Windsor to see the castle and watch the Changing of the Guard by a contingent of Irish Guards, accompanied by their Irish Wolfhound mascot.

It was delightful to receive so many really nice people from Massachusetts. We loved entertaining them and being entertained by the choir. We hope we sent them home tired but happy. We look forward to visiting Andover, Mass. again in a couple of years.

The Siemens Somatom Sensation 16 and Somatom 6 capture images of the body rapidly, producing amazing, clear pictures down to 1/10th of a second.

For patients, this means reduced scan time, and greater ease of scheduling. Plus the scanners' wide bores offer patients more comfort during procedures.

The Hospital's investment makes this breakthrough in advanced diagnostic technology available right now.

And that's an important diagnostic advantage for both physicians and patients.

She received her bachelor's and masters degrees from Clemson University.

"We are pleased to welcome Karin to the Savings Bank," Larry Andrews, vice president-senior business banking officer said in announcing her appointment to the bank. "Her expertise in commercial lending and credit administration will be a tremendous asset to the Savings Bank."

Angela C. Dushane of Haverhill also has joined the Business Banking Division of the Savings Bank as a vice president and business banking officer.

Pasta Villagio shuts burners for good

New restaurant to take over Park Street Village location

By Andrea Gregory

Anyone calling to make dinner reservations at Pasta Villagio will hear a recorded announcement that the restaurant has closed. "Thank you for 15 wonderful years," it says.

The Pappadopoulos family restaurant closed on July 16, a few weeks after owners Chris and Eileen Pappadopoulos decided it was time to sell their business.

According to their daughter, Adrienne Sarkisian, negotiations with another restaurant are underway. But she said it is too early to announce who will take over the space.

"It will be odd to see another restaurant there," said Sarkisian. "I don't really remember life without the restaurant."

Sarkisian remembers the day her parents opened for business in Andover. It was her eighth-grade graduation day. Directly following the ceremony, family and friends headed over to Pasta Villagio for the first of many celebrations to take place in the Italian eatery. The following day, Pasta Villagio opened its doors to the public. Sarkisian, the eighth-grade graduate, was immediately put to work as a busgirl. Her brother worked beside her as a busboy clearing the first plates off customers' tables.

Sarkisian said she always considered a career in the restaurant business. She is now the owner of the 6-year-old Glory Restaurant on Essex Street. Her brother also stayed in the restaurant world. He and Sarkisian run Evenfall in Haverhill.

"My parents have been in the business a long time," said Sarkisian mentioning she was happy to see them on vacation this week. "It was 15 great years. It was time."

"It was sad to leave and it was even sadder when I got the phone call that they were closing," said Katie Burns, a former employee of Pasta Villagio.

The now former site of Pasta Villagio in Park Street Village. The restaurant was an Andover Italian favorite for 15 years.

Burns spent nine years working for the Pappadopoulos family. She started off cleaning tables and worked her way up to manager by the time she left.

But leaving Pasta Villagio was not as simple as it sounds. She said it was sort of an inside joke that you never really leave. Somehow, people would always end up working there occasionally after leaving the establishment. When someone was sick or on vacation and a shift needed to be filled, former staff members such as Burns were kind of on stand-by. Burns said she remembers filling in for a shift a few months ago, not thinking at the time it would definitely be her last.

The Pappadopoulos family, owners of Pasta Villagio, left a note on the window of the now closed restaurant to thank their patrons. A new restaurant is expected to rent the space.
Two other local restaurants, Glory of Andover and Evenfall of Haverhill, are owned by their children, who started working at Pasta Villagio as teenagers.

To all of our loyal patrons.
We want to thank you for fifteen wonderful years of business, and for the memories and friendships born here.

Pasta Villagio has been a fantastic journey for us. We hope to see you at Glory and Evenfall in the years to come.

Sincerely,
The Pappadopoulos Family

TOWN OF ANDOVER PLANNING BOARD

Notice is hereby given that a continued public hearing will be held on August 10, 2004, at 8:00 p.m., in the Third Floor Conference Room, Town Office Building, 36 Bartlet Street, on the application of Enterprise Bank and Trust Company for a Special Permit for Major Non-Residential Development to allow for the redevelopment of an existing structure containing 9,300 square feet of space, and 35 parking spaces; all to accommodate a banking institution and associated offices, with drive-up tellers, on a 38,000 square-foot parcel of land located at 8 High Street, said property identified as Lot 53 on Assessor's Map 38. The original application and plans did not provide for the addition to the building, or the demolition of the existing one-story building, and the public hearing was continued without discussion to allow for new public notice. The revised plans and documents may be viewed in the Planning Department between the hours of 8:00 a.m., and 4:00 p.m., Monday through Friday.
